Initial Goals

1. TRUST. We have to trust each other in order to be successful. Trust needs to be established between the coach and players, parents, administration, teachers, and the student body. We want school spirit to be off the charts. This will demand trust.
2. COMMUNICATION. Everyone in the program has to be willing to communicate in order to be successful. Sometimes we have to be willing to hear something we don't enjoy hearing in order to grow as people. But we must communicate in a positive manner, or people will not respond in a positive way.
3. COMMITMENT. Without commitment, our program does not stand a chance. Parents, coaches, players, and teachers must commit to do their part for the overall good of the program. We are here to build successful people, and that takes commitment.
4. HARD WORK. We must establish a culture of hard work. If there is work to be done, then we need to do it 100% to the best of our ability. No matter what!
5. COMPETITIVENESS. Competition is not just about winning. Of course you want to win, but competition is more than that. It is an opportunity to give your best, physically and mentally, in many different circumstances. A competitor is poised, smart, tough, and conditioned. He never makes excuses, and he never quits. Regardless of athletic ability, we need a team of competitors to be successful.
6. TEAMWORK. It's easy for a person to do something on their own terms. Teamwork requires compromise, humility, and encouragement. Nothing great was ever accomplished without teamwork.
7. FUN. We want to have fun playing the game of basketball. The game is always fun to play if you have the right attitude. Fun can exist in different forms. Most kids think of fun as goofing off and joking around. I want the kids to have fun while constantly challenging themselves to do better. When you rise up and meet a challenge, nothing is more fun than that!
